SOVIET TRADE UNIONISTS VISIT CZECHOSLOVAK ENTERPRISES

OSIPOV CRITICIZES QUALITY OF PRODUCTS -- Prague, Rude Pravo 18 Jan 52

A five-member delegation of Soviet trade-union representatives under the leadership of Aleksandr Petrovich Osipov, secretary of the All-Union Central Council of Trade Unions, visited the Tatrosvit and Chemosvit, national enterprises located at Svlt in Slovakia. They were escorted by Zdenek Valuch and JuraJ Sen, Czechoslovak secretaries of the Central Trade-Union Council.

After the inspection Osipov addressed the workers. He stated that although they had fulfilled the plan, the quality of the products manufactured there had not been satisfactory.

On 17 January, the delegation arrived in Ostrava, accompanied by the Czechoslovak secretaries Zdenek Valouch and Josef Smidmajer.

In Ostrava they were welcomed by Jakub Peterek, president of the kraj Trades Council, and Josef Ploskonka, a representative of the Czechoslovak Communist Party secretariat.

Within the next few days the delegation is scheduled to inspect the Klement Gottwald Ironworks in Vitkovice, the Hlubina mine, and the new Klement Gottwald Metallurgical Combine in Ostrava.

Ladislav Malinsky is the oldest son of a mine laborer in Ostrava. He went to work as a helper in the Vitkovice Ironworks at the age of 16½. He worked there at the open hearth, in the steel mill, and in the rolling mill. During the occupation he was in prison for 3½ years. After the liberation he returned to the Vitkovice Ironworks. He was first a member and later president of the plant council. In May 1951 he was put in charge of the Czechoslovak Works in Bratislava, where he was active until the present appointment was made.
